Coach Anderson Attending Coaching School This Week

Ordell H. Anderson is among the coaches who are attending the fourth annual Northeastern Coaching School which started Monday and continues until Saturday of this week at Northeastern University, Boston.

Some 300 coaches from the United States and Canada are at Northeastern to hear the leading college coaches of the country explain their systems of play.

Dr. "Jock" Sutherland, coach of Pittsburgh's Rose Bowl champions, and Maddy Bell of Southern Methodist will go most of the talking on football, with Dick Harlow of Harvard also doing his share. Howie Odell, backfield assistant to Harlow and Sutherland, will help with the football, while Dr. Henry A. Kontoff, Northeastern team physician, will lecture on the care of athletic injuries. Tony Hinkle of Butler University will bring his basketball team from Indiana to demonstrate the court game.

Schmidt—Grover

An attractive wedding was that of Miss Dorothy Pearl Grover of Bethel and Dr. Lorrimer Miller Schmidt of Billerica, Mass., which took place Friday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Grover, at West Bethel. Rev. Albert P. Watson of Wilton officiated, using the double ring service.

The couple was attended by Miss Hazel Grover and Frederick Grover, sister and brother of the bride. The ceremony took place beneath an archway of evergreen and syringa blossoms and the house was decorated with garden flowers.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with veil of tulle and lace, a lace cap trimmed with seed pearls and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses and baby's breath. The maid of honor was dressed in blue embroidered net over blue satin with accessories of white, and carried pink snap dragons and roses.

The wedding party entered the room to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" played by Mrs. Sylvia Luxton, sister of the bride.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held. A buffet luncheon was served by Miss Lucille Wing, R. N., of Rumford, and Miss Hazel Sawyer, R. N., of Lewiston.

After the reception, amid a shower of confetti, the couple left by automobile for a short wedding trip. The bride's travelling costume was a pale pink shadskin suit with white accessories. Upon their return, Dr. and Mrs. Schmidt will live at Strong.

The bride was graduated from Gould Academy, and the Nurses' Training School of the C. M. G. hospital in 1929. For several years she did private nursing in Lewiston; during the past two years she has been employed at the Franklin County Memorial Hospital in Farmington.

Dr. Schmidt was graduated from Howe High School in Billerica, Tufts College, the University of Missouri, and Tufts Medical School in Boston. For the past two years, he has been resident physician at Franklin County Memorial hospital in Farmington.

Guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt of Billerica, Mass., parents of the bridegroom; Dr. Mabel M. Cook of Orange, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. D. Grover, West Paris; Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Weymouth, Burton Weymouth, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Knowlton, Miss Miriam Carrick, R. N., of Farmington; Dr. and Mrs. Cecil F. Thompson of Phillips; Miss Wing, R. N., of Rumford; Miss Hazel Sawyer, R. Another band concert will be given on the Common next Wednesday evening. Their first open air presentation of the season last week was much appreciated by a fair sized audience and many more should plan to be present in the future.

BUCKLEY—MARSHALL

Miss Erma Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Marshall, and Emmett Buckley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Buckley of Berlin, N. H., were married at Berlin Saturday evening.

The couple were attended by Miss Helen Beckler of Bethel and Philip Kelly of Berlin, and the single ring service was used.

The bride wore a Copenhagen blue traveling suit with white accessories and carried a bridal bouquet of roses. Miss Beckler's costume was white.

Following the ceremony the couple were given a reception at the home of the bridegroom's brother, William Buckley.

After a trip of several days the couple will make their home on School Street, Berlin.

The bride is a graduate of Gould Academy in the class of 1922. She has taught in the schools of Bethel, Newry, and Norway. She worked in Bryant's Market four years and for the past year has had employment in the office of the E. L. Tebbets Spool Co., Locke Mills.

Mr. Buckley has lived in Berlin nearly all his life, for several years being associated with the Brown Company, and at present is in charge of a P. W. A. project.

Miss Erma Marshall Honored By Group of Friends

The home of Mrs. M. J. Marshall was the scene of a very happy gathering on last Thursday evening. Thirty-five friends met to "shower" Miss Marshall. On arriving home after being invited out to supper she was greeted at the door by Mrs. Ferol Godwin who, reading an original poem, directed her to the living room. By following a string she found friends waiting, also a huge umbrella decorated in pink and green which was filled with many beautiful and useful gifts.

After the gifts were opened and the many good wishes and humorous verses read, Betty Marshall who gave a ballet dance accompanied by Marilyn Marshall. All joined in singing a group of "rain" songs with Mrs. Harry Lyon at the piano. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and assorted cake, including a wedding cake made by Mrs. Olive Douglass, were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Madelyn Dudley and Mrs. Ferol Godwin, assisted by Mrs. Elva Marshall and Mrs. Olive Douglass. The house was decorated throughout with wild flowers.

Those present besides the hostesses were Miss Susie B. Twitchell, Mrs. Mary Brown, Mrs. Ada Durrell, Miss Florence Twitchell, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Olive Douglass, Miss Minnie Capen, Mrs. Ruth Poole, Mrs. Agnes Gurney, Mrs. Mary Ladd, Billy Croteau, Miss Eva Ladd, Mrs. Lena Chapman, Miss Virginia Chapman, Mrs. Ruby Perkins, Mrs. John Fuller, Miss Lillian Fuller, Miss Dorothy Foster, Mrs. Mildred Lyon, Mrs. Mabel Warren, Mrs. Elva Marshall, Mrs. M. J. Marshall, Mrs. Mildred Garroway, Mrs. Esther Brown, Betty and Marilyn Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Greenleaf and daughter Eunice of Starks spent the week end with his brother, Dr. S. S. Greenleaf, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, sons, Donald, Irving and John, were in Orono Saturday at the annual meeting of the Maine Press Association. The Bethel town team was defeated by Bryant Pond Tuesday evening 4-0. Wednesday they were victors in a contest with the U. of M. summer camp 9-2.

Eddy Bros. Circus In Bethel Monday

Not discouraged by the rainy season and a succession of rainy visits to Bethel, Mr. Hunt, owner of Eddy Bros. and Hunt's circuses, was in town Monday with one of his advance men, arranging for two performances of the Eddy Bros. Circus here on Monday, July 5.

A complete new show is promised this season and this assurance should be sufficient to warrant a full attendance. With three rings in the big tent—trained horses, dogs, and elephants, clever aerialists and funny clowns, exhibitions of marksmanship and whip-snapping, and the other attractions, this popular show will be a favored holiday attraction.

Oxford Farm Field Day To Be Held at Earl Osgood's

The Oxford County Farm Bureau field day will be held this year at Earl Osgood's farm in Fryeburg. This is a dairy farm located one and one-half miles from Fryeburg village on the Bridgton road. It is near Lovell's Pond, where there is a good opportunity for bathing. Mr. Osgood has a herd of about 15 Guernseys and operates a retail milk route. He is a member and secretary-treasurer of the county Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and for the first eleven months, which have been reported, his herd has averaged to produce 297 pounds of butterfat and 6466 pounds of milk per cow. He has applied heavy applications of complete fertilizer to nine acres of pasture and 15 acres of hayfield. The pasture is divided into plots and includes one piece of oats which can be grazed later in the season if necessary. Early cutting of hayfields is another practice followed on this farm. Mr. Osgood said his cows were in better condition this spring than ever before. He believes early-cut hay was an important factor in maintaining body weight, as well as milk production during the winter.

The field day will be held some time during August preferably the week of the 16th. The date, however, has not been definitely determined, feeling that this should be left for the speaker to select, according to his convenience.

NOTICE

My office will be closed on Saturday afternoons until October 1st.

Double Wedding For Brother and Sister

At her home, 43 Carlton Street, Brookline, Mass., on June 26, Miss Esther Holt and Rudolph Detrich, and her brother, Joseph Holt, and Miss Evelyn Rich were united in a double marriage service.

The Rev. William L. Stidger of Boston performed the impressive double ring service in the presence of the three families, who were seated in the double parlors opening into the large hall which was beautifully decorated with flowers.

The brides looked very lovely in white satin, lace and veils, carrying bouquets of white rose buds and lilies of the valley, as they came down the stairs to the strains of the wedding march.

After a time of joyous congratulations, a beautiful wedding cake was cut and refreshments served, the young couples left for parts unknown on their honeymoons.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SYMBOLS OF SUMMER

"The summer comes with flower and bee."

THE beauty of flowers is an attraction and a challenge to every camera owner. Frankly, good flower pictures are not easy to take and for that reason success brings more than ordinary satisfaction to the amateur photographer.

Proper lighting, a large image and patient work with the camera are the essentials of flower photography. The best camera to use is one with a long-extension bellows, enabling one to focus close to the flower, and having a ground glass focusing screen on which you can see the image before snapping the shutter.

But, if you haven't such a camera, good work may be done with ordinary folding or box cameras, provided a portrait attachment is used to obtain a large image. This supplementary lens, which comes with a table of focusing distances, makes it possible to work within arm's length of the subject. Always use a tape measure to determine exactly the specified distance between lens and flower. Panchromatic film gives the best rendering of the tone contrasts among the colors.

Flower pictures need to be vividly sharp; hence, a small lens opening should usually be used—f16 or f22—or the smallest stop on box cameras, and the camera should be on a tripod or held securely with a camera clamp. The exposure should be from 1/2 to one second.

Wind is a problem, of course. At such close distances movement of the subject makes more difference. It is worth while to wait for a moment when the blossom is motionless. If you find the wind too blowsy, devise a wind-breaker of some sort.

Hazy days, or when the sun is shining under light clouds, makes the ideal time for flower pictures. Direct bright sunshine is not desirable, but if you can't wait for better conditions, give your subject the protection of a cheesecloth screen. Better results are obtained in the early morning or late afternoon when the light is less harsh and comes from the side. This is especially true for cup-shaped flowers. Nearby foliage, or other blossoms not wanted, may be tied back with string or cut away. A piece of stiff cardboard placed behind the flower often is a better background than the natural one.

Sometimes, if you are patient enough to wait, a flying bee will enter the chalice of your flower. Click! Your patience is rewarded with a picture that is a perfect symbol of summertime.

Night Watchman—All the Year Enforced Traffic Rules

For A Happy Holiday

The "Glorious Fourth" can be just as glorious as we choose to make it. This year the long weekend created by the holiday will intensify the hazards which the 4th always produces. The watchword should be, "Take Care!"

Independence Day celebrates the independence of a nation. The coming week end will demonstrate vividly the interdependence of people.
Great streams of traffic pouring over the highways will show how essential are mutual regard and courtesy among drivers. Fireworks, will demonstrate it too. A "firecracker thrown by another" is, according to the National Conservation Bureau, the greatest single cause of the tremendous number of fireworks accidents every Fourth of July. At the beaches and lakes, imprudent swimmers will again remind us that human life must be risked to save the life of a drowning person.

Reasonable care divides a happy holiday from the tragedies which mar it. Reasonable care will insure you your family, and the other follow against mishap. For instance:

If you drive—see that your car is in good mechanical condition.
Check tires, lights, brakes, steering mechanism, windshield wiper, rear view mirror, horn. Drive skillfully at reasonable speed. Observe the rules and courtesies of the road.

If you must use fireworks—give yourself plenty of space. Keep away from children and animals and buildings. Throw firecrackers away from people and inflammable materials, not at them. Never hold an exploding firecracker, nor set them off under a bottle or can.
Cauterize the smallest wound immediately—tetanus poisoning works fast and kills.

If you go swimming—swim in safe and protected places. Beware of strong tides and currents. Know your limits as a swimmer. Wait two hours after eating. Avoid shallow places.

Everyman's Right

Thirty-five years ago, there was a serious coal strike. President Theodore Roosevelt appointed a special commission to settle it. The following extract from the Commission's report is as pertinent now as it was then:

"The right to remain at work where others have ceased to work, or to engage anew in work which others have abandoned, is part of the personal liberty of a citizen that can never be surrendered.

"All government implies restraint, and it is not less, but more, necessary in self-governed communities than in others, to compel restraint of the passions of men which make for disorder and lawlessness. Our language is the language of a free people, and fails to furnish any form of speech by which the right of a citizen to work when he pleases, for whom he pleases, and on what terms he pleases, can be successfully denied.

"The common sense of our people, as well as the common law, forbids that this right shall be assailed with impunity. Approval of

THE RIGHT TO WORK?

the object of a strike, or persuasion that its purpose is high and noble, cannot sanction an attempt to destroy the right of others to a different opinion in this respect, or to interfere with their conduct in choosing to work upon what terms and at what time and for whom it may please them to do so.

"The right thus to work cannot be made to depend upon the approval or disapproval of the personal character and conduct of those who claim to exercise this right. If this were otherwise, then those who remain at work might, if they were in the majority, have both the right and power to prevent the others, who choose to cease to work from so doing.

"This all seems too plain for argument. Common sense and common law alike denounce the conduct of those who interfere with this fundamental right of the citizen. The assertion of the right seems trite and commonplace, but the land is blessed where the maxims of liberty are commonplaces."

The SUPREME COURT
AND HOW IT WORKS

How to Get a Hearing By ROBERT MERRILL

BETWEEN the Supreme court in Washington and a citizen on the Pacific coast an entire continent intervenes. But when it comes to the protection of his Constitutional rights, distance means nothing. His case in a local state or federal court may reach the Supreme court of the United States by steps easily and quickly taken.

How can he get his problem before our National Umpire for a decision? Here, step by step, is the method:

Suppose, for example, a state should pass a law making a homeowner liable for the cost of repaving the street from curb to curb in front of his house.

The home-owner claims that this is a municipal expense, which the city should pay out of its general fund.

Appeals From State Court.

The city ignores his objection, files a lien against his property and threatens to sell him out for non-payment.

In the local state court the citizen's attorney moves to strike off the lien. The court, relying on the state statute, refuses. The homeowner appeals to the Supreme court of the state, which dismisses his appeal and declares that either the citizen must pay or have his house sold over his head.

"Am I through?" asks the homeowner.

"Certainly not," replies his attorney. "We'll find out what the Supreme court of the United States thinks about this."

So the home-owner's attorney sends to Washington a short printed petition, stating the facts, giving the decision of the state court and asking the United States Supreme court to order the state court to send its record for review.

State Court Supplies Record.

When this petition reaches Washington every one of the Supreme court justices separately examines it and also the printed answer of the lawyer for the state. At the justices' conference on the following Saturday morning, if all or a majority of them think there is substance in the citizen's claim, they grant the petition—and the record comes up from the state court.

The home-owner's case is then set down on the argument list. Lawyers on both sides file briefs. When the case is about to be reached for argument all parties are notified.
The citizen's own attorney either appears for him or entrusts the argument to an attorney in Washington.
The home-owner doesn't have to appear at all.

The case is now argued. The justices go into a huddle over it.
After thorough consideration the decision is announced. The first paying of the road, it may find, peculiarly benefits the citizen's property, and therefore the cost can be assessed against it. But subsequent repavings of the space between curbs are a community responsibility, and must be paid for out of the tax money which all the citizens contribute.

State Court Reversed.

The judgment of the state Supreme court is therefore reversed, and the record is sent back across the continent with instructions to strike off the lien.

If, in such a case, the citizen has been a non-resident of the state in which this property was situated he might have sought relief in the local United States district court instead of in the state court.

If he had lost his case both there and in the local United States circuit court of appeals, his subsequent approach to the Supreme court of the United States would have been the same as in the appeal from the state court just described.

The great help to the citizen in any such typical case lies in the fact that the final decision is in the hands of an umpire, concerned with constitutional rights.

In this imaginary paving case, the mayor and city council could see only community advantage in making the householder go on paying for successive repavings. Fortunately the Supreme court exists to see both sides of a picture and so to insure the citizen against loss of his property otherwise than by the due process of law guaranteed to him by the Fifth and the Fourteenth amendments to the Constitution.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual National and International Problem Inseparable from Local Welfare

Today the business outlook is curiously mixed. On the unfavorable side, the strike situation grows steadily more tense, even as individual strikes are growing more bloody and embittered, and troubles such as those now being experienced by the independent steel companies may be felt in other important industries before the year's end. On top of this, Congress is considering or about to consider a number of legislative proposals—ranging all the way from a new and more stringent "NRA" to creation of a gigantic, Federally-owned super power system—which are anthem to all business leaders. And there is a good chance that taxes will be materially increased for 1938.

Even so, the strength of the recovery movement—expressed in rising incomes, and an almost insatiable public desire for commodities of all kinds—is so great that practically all of the established forecasting services are bullish. Thus, in recent weeks, the Alexander Hamilton service has said, "The world is in the boom phase of the business cycle." Babson believes that "gains over a year ago should continue to be well maintained."

Brookshire anticipates that "renewed recovery should follow the summer lull." Colonel Ayres sees "no reason to fear that any serious business recession is impending." Glibson says, "No major decline is in prospect for the summer months." Poor's foresees "some recession during the near term," but nothing severe. Summing up opinion, United Business Service observes that "present indications point to a moderate let down in activity over the next few months, although business in the aggregate should hold above a year ago."

So far as specific elements in the industrial picture are concerned, the commentators agree fairly well.
Most of them think that bond prices will be either stabilized at current levels or may go down slightly due to higher interest rates. Stocks are definitely irregular, with the recent trend downward, but neither matterial advances nor recessions are anticipated. There will be little variance in commodity prices generally during the next few months, with a possible rise coming in the fall.

Summer trade in all lines, seasonal factors considered, will be good, and better than in 1936. Foreign trade should start upward, but it will be a long time before pre-depression levels are again reached.

A war in Europe would revolutionize the outlook in this field, but few believe that any of the major powers are sufficiently confident to risk a war as yet—they are simply bluffing and stalling.

For most industries, the earnings outlook is good—though nowhere near as good as the production outlook. Some of the largest industries —of which railroads are a case in point—are doing a greatly increased volume of business with extremely small increases in earnings, due to higher taxes, higher wages, etc. However, practically all industry has emerged from the "defect period" and is at least back in the black ink.

The impending cleavage of the Democratic party, discussed some weeks ago in this column, is becoming an actuality. It is tending to obscure all other political news of the moment.

The Supreme Court bill, in the view of most political experts, is definitely dead. It may not even come to a vote in the Senate. If it does come to a vote, these experts think it will be beaten by a margin of five or six votes.

It is an open secret that Vice-President Garner's departure from Washington for a vacation—an unprecedented action in an important legislative session—is due to major disagreements between him and the President. This seriously weakens Mr. Roosevelt's legislative machine in the Senate—Mr. Garner has been extremely efficient in getting legislation through and swinging recalcitrants into line.

A legion of incidents have lead the best commentators to say that in 1940 the voters may find themselves confronted with an entirely new political alignment—"liberals" of the New Deal school on one side, and "conservatives" on the other side. If this happens, the two old parties will be split wide open—both of them contain members who have almost nothing in common in their philosophies of government.

In the meantime, labor becomes an increasingly important factor.
Advocates of a more or less radical farmer-labor political alliance are being heard. And John L. Lewis frankly looks forward to the day when organized labor will be directly involved in politics, may lead a party of its own.

Whatever your opinion on these matters, these are the facts of the case. Never was the political outlook more confused, or more difficult to forecast. Almost anything can happen.

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH

We are very happy to bid Mr. and Mrs. Bull and their family adieu as they begin their vacation this week. They will attend the Rural Ministers Conference at Ocean Park this week and then visit at Mr. Bull's home in Billerica, Mass.

On Friday evening of this week we meet at 6:30 o'clock at Center Lovell where the Ladies will have a supper awaiting us. After the supper you will have the opportunity to see some very fine picture-Two feature pictures will be shown —Marcus Whitman's classic of pioneer days in the West, "The Oregon Trail," and the story of the greatest heroine in the history of France, "Joan of Arc," plus a cartoon comedy, "Local Talent."

Vacation Schools are due to start in the Parish next Tuesday, July 6th. Because of a great deal of illness in one part of the Parish, a change in plans has been made, and Vacation Schools will start in East Stoneham. This School will enroll all children in Stoneham and in Clark, Town House and Marshall school districts of Albany. North Waterford children will be cared for in a later school. If your children are in this territory, by all means, give them the opportunity of the school! Three-year-olds are not too young, and those in the 8th grade last year are cordially invited.

On Tuesday and Friday evenings there will be Circle Suppers at 6:30 p. m. at North Waterford and Waterford. This will be the first of the suppers of the summer at Waterford. After the supper at North Waterford our regular Summer Council Meeting will be held. We are very happy to welcome as our speaker at this meeting Dr. Archibald C. Sinclair of the Old First Presbyterian Church, Bloomfield.
He is a very close friend of Mr.
Gledhill and will visit with him for a couple of weeks at the Waterford Parsonage. While in Germany last summer he had some very intimate and personal contacts which he will tell us about.

Rehearsals have already been started for the "Farmers' Minstrel" which a group from Albany are planning to present after the next regular Circle Supper on the 8th. The proceeds of this minstrel will go towards meeting the expenses of transporting the children to and from Church School.

Sunday morning services will be held throughout the Parish at the regular hours of worship, at which time we will all celebrate the Lord's Supper. If you have not been worshipping with us, why not make this service a time of renewal and rededication. We are very happy to welcome to our services our Summer residents. They constitute a very vital part of our Summer program. In Mr. Bull's absence we hope, as in previous summers, to call upon our guest preachers visiting in the Parish. Our first guest preacher will be Dr. Sinclair, who will speak at the Center Lovell Church.

In the evening our Young People are going to climb Ray Hill. We will meet at the North Waterford Church at 5 o'clock. Bring a picnic supper, and plan to come. We have not arranged for our speaker, but we will have a good one.

How Long Animals Live

The biggest creatures do not live the longest. No elephant has been known to live for more than seventy years in its average life. Some whales, weighing up to ninety tons, live for a hundred years. The hippopotamus and rhinoceros, both huge creatures, live from twenty to thirty-two years. Bears live for thirty-three years; lions and tigers, seventeen; sea-lions, seventeen; badgers, twelve; foxes, ten. The raven often lives for a hundred years, and the Egyptian vulture has been known to live for 118 years.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Uncle Cy's Appetite

By MARION E. LEIGHTON © McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Service.

UNCLE CY, dressed for a tramp to the "sugar camp," stood with his hand on the doorknob and watched Sary as she rummaged in the cupboard.

"Where in the world?" She pushed dishes aside and peered into the darkest corners—"Where in the world! Cy Morrill, what have you done with that other mince pie?"

Cy grinned foolishly. "Now, Sary," he defended, "you know I was pretty hungry when I got home from the Corners last night."

Sary placed hands on hips and gazed at him in exaggerated exasperation. "I declare! I never saw such an appetite as you've had since you've been tramping over to that camp! You better stay home or else get a cook."

"Guess you can feed me a spell longer, Ma," he grinned. "Be back in an hour or two. S'long."

On the morning following this incident the little village of Hill's Corners was awakened from its mid-winter repose by a startling story in the papers. The story was accompanied by an excellent likeness of a young man in his late twenties who was known to the authorities as "Slim" Barker, alias So-and-So, alias Something Else, very recently wanted for robbery and attempted murder in a nearby city. Slim had successfully eluded the officers and was believed to be headed for some remote section of Maine to bury himself in a snow-drift until the incident was forgotten.

The Red Hot Stove club assembled at the general store and, barring a brief recess for "dinner," remained in session the entire day. That picture on the front page was an excellent likeness of Liddy Baker's estranged son Sam, and Liddy was one of the most respected "widders" of the Hill's Corners community.

Everybody who had known Sam Baker before he quarreled with his mother two long years ago recognized the likeness at a glance.

Everybody but Cy Morrill. "Poor Liddy," mourned Sary. "She'll never forgive Sam now."

"Sam never done that robbery nor nuthin' like it," defended Cy. "Liddy didn't understand how to manage Sam. That boy would do anything for me—or anybody else that needed help. A feller like that ain't goin' to rob an' murder anybody."

"Still, there's his picture," observed Sary.

"Huh!" snorted Cy. "There's more'n one pea in a pod!"

It was snowing softly that evening when Cy hitched old Bess to the sleigh and departed for the Corners to get a Saturday supply of groceries. As he glimpsed the lights of the village a shrill whistle came to his ears.

"Train's late 't'night," he muttered. "G'long, Bess!"

The locomotive came to a panting stop at the crossing just in time to hold them up.

Cy's keen eyes caught the movement of a dark figure as it crawled from the rods of the second car back and limped painfully toward him out of the storm. The figure stopped with a startled exclamation as old Bess loomed directly in his path.

At that opportune moment the fireman on the locomotive opened the firebox door and the resultant glare plainly exposed the stranger's features to the searching gaze of Uncle Cy.

Both moved at the same instant. Uncle Cy, displaying remarkable agility for a man of sixty, was out of the sleigh and upon the other in two jumps.

The station agent held his lantern aloft and stared across the track as a shout for help came out of the storm. The half-dozen men who were headed for the postoffice heard it also. Investigation showed Uncle Cy seated astride the prostrate form of a struggling captive who was trying his level best to be gone. The victim was immediately turned over to the sheriff, and identified as Sam Baker.

One hour and thirty minutes later the crowd that was still milling about the sheriff's office to get a peep at the prisoner was effectually parted by the efficient elbows of Uncle Cy. In his wake came Sary and closely following was the "Widder Baker," clinging to the arm of a slim young man, as if fearful of losing him in the crowd. That same crowd gasped as it recognized the "Widder's" escort as Sam Baker.

"Ye see, sheriff, it's like this," grinned Cy, when he had attained his objective. "I been feedin' Sam up in my camp fer a week, waitin' for the proper time to take him home to his ma. Gosh! But wimmen is obstinate! I had her almost ready to forgive him when this picture bobs up in th' paper an' it's all off."

"Sam, here, an' this feller 'Slim' is alike as two peas, but you study 'em close an' you can pick out Sam all right."

Sary poked him in the ribs. "Cy Morrill! That's where all my grub's been goin'—to feed Sam. I thought you had an awful appetite all of a sudden."

"He has," broke in Liddy, softly. "An awful appetite for helpin' his neighbors—bless him!"

"VIOLETS for Janey, Doctor?" Susan smiled as she took his order. Dr. Markley had been sending Janey violets on special occasions ever since the florist shop had moved uptown. It was about time he married the girl, Sue reflected, though then his orders would cease. They always did!

"And orchids for Mrs. Throckmorton Prince, Sunset avenue," he added. "Would ten dollars buy a corsage—nothing showy?" peeling a dollar bill and two fives from a rather slim roll. He would like to write the cards himself. What a long time it took him!

Susan, clipping the ends of day-break pinks, eyed him speculatively. She had known both Janey Smallwood and Dr. Judson Markley since high school days. Was it eight or nine years that Janey had been waiting? "Your change, Doctor." She handed him a quarter. "From the violets." He pocketed it eagerly, handing her the tiny white envelopes. "H'm," thought Susan. "H'm! The wealthy Mrs. Prince is a widow. Poor Janey!"

Dr. Markley hustled from his hospital rounds to the mezzanine Brown children and thence to a tonsil case and an expectant mother. Between stops his mind was in a turmoil. He'd got to come to a decision today; that Philippine offer couldn't wait any longer: Either he must accept it right away or lose it forever. It was a pretty good opening, he knew, for a struggling young physician. By taking it he could marry Janey. He grew tender as he thought of Janey. Then he steeled his heart and considered what marriage with Mrs. Prince would mean for him: a clientele among her rich friends, a beautiful suite of offices with assistants, a jump over those first wretched years when a young doctor is getting his foothold; in fact, escape from poverty. He was so tired of being poor. He had, he felt, paved the way rather neatly with flowers. "The violets will soften the blow for Janey," he sighed, realizing that already in his heart he had succumbed to temptation. Of course he could renege on what he'd written on the card. Janey always understood everything.

Screwing up his courage, Dr. Markley ascended the stone steps to the Prince mansion and rang the bell. He'd got rid of her three chins if he had to starve her! And no kittenish baby-talk after they were married, if he had to strangle her! She'd accept him all right. Hadn't she chased him till it nauseated every fiber?

"Mrs. Prince is not at home, sir." "But I have an appointment," the doctor told the butler. "She's expecting me." "Mrs. Prince's orders, sir. Sorry, sir."

"I'll wait." The butler's sardonic mask maddened him. "Not at home. Especially to you, sir." The massive door was closing in his face!

After a stunned moment, Dr. Markley drove to the Smallwoods'. Janey greeted him with shining eyes. She was taking it like a thoroughbred, he thought, with a stab at his heart. There would be no heroics with Janey. "I've just dropped in for a moment, Jane. I felt I owed you some further explanation."

"Oh, you needn't say a word, darling! That was the most original offer of marriage any girl ever received." (She was in his arms now.) "And the answer is yes, yes, yes—any time you say!"

Over her shoulder two delicate orchids floated themselves saucily from a glass bowl. There was nothing he could do but hold her tighter and kiss her. Nothing he wanted to do, he realized now, half so much. "I'll be so glad to leave the stupid old law office," Janey admitted later. "The tiresome Mrs. Prince was haggling all the afternoon to see if there wasn't some way to break her husband's will. You know she will lose every cent if she ever marries again. I shouldn't talk shop, but it isn't anything that matters to you."

"No, it doesn't matter to me! To blazes with Mrs. Prince!" His mind was racing. What had he written—to go with the violets? "Perhaps it will be better if we meet only casually, as I am about to be married."

A week to a day he again entered the florist shop. "Violets for Janey?" piped Susan, pencil poised. "No, bridal bouquet," grinned the doctor.

Tongue-Tasting
Not all parts of the tongue are evenly sensitive to the various tastes. The tip of the tongue is better able to taste sweet substances, while the base quickly detects the presence of bitter things. Materials containing salt are most easily tasted at the sides of the tongue, but sour or acid tastes are felt all over.

Maybe the Joker
"I don't mind meeting a man that thinks well of hissef," said Uncle Eben. "What I don't like is to meet one dat tries to make me think he's a picture card when he knows, as well as anybody dat he's only a deuce."

PITCHING FIND
Jack Dawson, sixteen-year-old pitching sensation of North high school, Des Moines, Iowa, who was signed by the Fargo-Moorhead club of the Northern league—a farm of the Cleveland Indians. Dawson, a righthander, who joined the team at the end of the school term, started the season by hurling 15 hitless innings. Cleveland's Bob Feller is from Van Meter, Iowa, a short distance from Des Moines.

Blake-Curtis

One of the most attractive weddings of the season was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth D. Curtis, West Paris, on Monday afternoon at four o'clock, when their only daughter, Elnora May, was united in marriage with George Everett Blake of Berlin, N. H. The double ring service was used, the officiating minister being Rev. Eleanor Bicknell Forbes, pastor of the West Paris Universalist church.

The attendants were Leroy Fish of Berlin, best man; Miss Myrtle Emery, matron of honor; Davis S. Curtis, brother of the bride; and Mrs. Curtis. The bride wore a white taffeta dress, princess style, and carried an arm bouquet of white peonies. Miss Emery was dressed in pink taffeta and carried an arm bouquet of pink peonies and blue delphiniums. Mrs. Curtis' dress was blue and she carried an arm bouquet of pink peonies. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The wedding march was omitted, as the bride's brother, Ellsworth D. Curtis, Jr., who was to have played the wedding march, was in Canada and unable to get home.

The house was prettily decorated with green and white the young couple standing under a white bell. Baskets of white roses and peonies were placed around the house.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Blake of Berlin, N. H. He was graduated from Berlin High School in the class of 1934. When in high school he received prizes for three consecutive years for cabinet work. The prize the first two years was a trip to Detroit, the third year for building a Fisher coach model he received a trip to the Chicago World's Fair.

She has been employed at Paris Hill the past year. Mrs. Blake is a regular attendant at the Universalist church, a member of the church choir and has been an efficient teacher in the Sunday School. She is popular in the community as was evidenced by the many useful and valuable gifts received.

After the wedding, luncheon was served and the bride cut the wedding cake made by her mother. Mr. and Mrs. Blake left in their auto for a wedding trip of ten days in Canada and New York. Mrs. Blake travelling in gray dress and coat with green accessories. On their return they will reside at 136 Sweden Street, Berlin, N. H.

Metals' Foe Is Found in

Corrosion, Expert Says

The word corrosion is derived from a Latin word meaning "to gnaw." It describes a chemical process that goes on quietly day and night, eating up a considerable part of the metals that men have dug, refined and wrought. Its most readily apparent effects are those on iron and steel (we call the corroded iron "rust"), but it damages most other metals as well, according to Dr. Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune.

When a metal corrodes it is merely returning to a state similar to that in which it was first found. There is very little difference chemically between iron dust and iron ore. Both are essentially compounds of iron with oxygen. The same similarity between ores and corrosion products is found among other metals, although the nonmetallic elements combined with the metal need not be oxygen. But no matter what they may be, their reaction with the metal is called an oxidation, because it is fundamentally similar to the reaction between a metal and oxygen. The reverse change, in which a metal is released from the combining elements and returned to the metallic state, is called reduction.

The conversion of an ore to a metal is a reduction, and the corrosion of the metal is an oxidation. These changes are regarded as electrical. When an atom is oxidized it loses electrons (negative electricity) and becomes more positively charged. Conversely, an atom becomes more negative when reduced. In general, acids are far more corrosive to metals than is oxygen.

How Copper Houses Are Built at Small Expense

Man has progressed from the cave and the tent to houses of brick and steel and glass after untold centuries of effort. Is he now to abandon them all and live in copper houses?

The first copper house in the United States was completed in Washington, D. C., not long ago. Built at the low cost of $1,500, resistance of the metal to deterioration is the principal advantage claimed.

The framework is of steel, with outside walls of heavy copper plates. The insulation is spun glass, the tiny air cells between the fibers keeping out the heat or cold. A six-inch wall so insulated is said to be as effective as eight feet of solid masonry, and is proof against weather, rust, fire, lightning, sound and termites.—Washington Post.

Fire of St. Anthony

The name fire of St. Anthony was applied to a form of erysipelas. A distemper of this character became epidemic in France in 1089. Many miraculous cures having been effected by the imputed intercession of St. Anthony, the order of Canons Regular of St. Anthony was founded the next year for the relief of those afflicted with this disease. The order continued to exist until 1790.
